University diploma for English trainers

Presentation

The course takes place over four separate intensive weeks of classes during the second semester, combined with a large personal workload spread over the semester, including guided distance learning. There is also a 30-hour training period of classroom observation and teaching practice.

Objectives

Skills gained:

- A solid grounding in the tools necessary to become a trainer in English as a foreign language, mainly to a French adult population
- A balanced mix of theory and practical skills for teaching English
- A variety of specific knowledge and skills (linguistics, teaching language through theatre, digital and social networking for language teaching, instructional design, etc.)

On completion of the course, as a qualified English trainer, you will be able to create and adapt resources and learning activities for your learners and assess their progress.

This course is designed to train candidates who already have wish to become professional English trainers with a university-level vocational qualification.

Registration and scholarships

Baccalauréat or equivalent + Bachelor's degree or equivalent. If you do not have the required degree to be admitted onto the course, there is a process whereby your professional experience and skills may be recognised as equivalent to a three-year university degree (validation of personal and professional achievements (VAPP)).

Admissions procedure and dates for 2020
