

Master in Urban planning and design

International cooperation in urban planning (ICUP) 2nd year

Presentation

The master of International cooperation in urban planning (ICUP) prepares students to new professional opportunities in the context of globalization and the consequent urban, economic and social evolution of cities. The master offers a solid culture about cities and a deep knowledge of technical tools needed to manage complex urban projects. It prepares students to become urban planners capable to adapt to different context of the global urbanization and issues like the accessibility, urban poverty, marginality, post-crisis situations.

Registration and scholarships

It is offered to students by right if they have completed the master of Sciences in International Cooperation in Urban Development (Erasmus Mundus master's endorsed by the European Union) given at the Technische Universität Darmstadt (TUD) in Germany.

Admission to the second year of the master's is also possible selectively for :

- Students who have completed the first year of the IUG's master's in Urban planning and development (UCI program - Urban planning and international cooperation)
- Students from other French or foreign master's programs in the field of urban planning

Program

Students take several teaching modules that enable them to expand their professional and interpersonal skills in the profession of urban planner. The course comes in the form of classes, tutorials, research seminars and project workshops that help to combine theory and practice. The program is largely based on the practice of teamwork and peer-learning. Half of the course is dedicated to training, while the other half is shared with different Master's programmes from IUGA or the Mundus Urbano master's:

- A design workshop in France with students from the first year of the UCI master's

- A workshop in France, Spain or Italy with students from the first year of the Mundus Urbano master's
- Four classes with students from the second year of the UCI master's
- Two classes with students from the second year of the master's in International Development Studies

Students complete their programme with the defence of a graduation paper, written in English and presented to a board composed by professors of IUGA and TU Darmstadt.
